

ABSTRACT

A substrate holding apparatus which holds a flat-like substrate comprises a base member and a plurality of projecting support members disposed on the base member such that the supporting members are arranged like a triangular lattice and distal end portions thereof are positioned on substantially the same plane. The substrate is to be placed on the plurality of support members.